The Comeback Kids H J Luke

They call themselves a family. They are the Comeback Kids: a group of twenty-somethings working in different fields from different background and nationality, all living in the Southeast Asian City of Taipei; led by the womanizing, physically dominating, good looking, musically talented Spaniard Flynn. A-Zed, a writer and the self-proclaimed boringest member of the Kids, in his sharply-witty, sometimes overly blunt words, tells us a story both of moving back and moving on: how they moved back and become the Comeback Kids, and how they have moved on from their lives elsewhere. With each other as company, they form a life of adventures and indulgence filled with wild parties, trips taken on a heartbeat, and a friendship tree that stretches around continents, in the diverse climate of modern Asia, which combines tradition and progress within their elements: places with names such as Taipei, Beijing, Hong Kong and Inner-Mongolia. It is the common story of this generation of twenty somethings: with their diverse backgrounds straight from their upbringing, they search this world no longer bound by borders for their own identity, and how that led them to each other. Making connections between their complex heritages, they created a list of their own traditions: the Sunday Brunches, Party of the Year, Flynn Day, Sake Day and Squid Season. They follow these bizarre traditions, as they go on these adventures with each other and learn the importance of family. It is a common story about coming back to your family, Just not the common family that you read about everyday
